Year of call: 2012
Degree: English Literature and Language (BA Hons, Oxon): First Class (second in year)

Jana specialises in international human rights and public and regulatory law. She has particular expertise in building and litigating cases seeking accountability for IHRL violations and international crimes, including working with affected communities. Alongside her work in Chambers she works for the Open Society Justice Initiative, part of the Open Society Foundations, where her cases relate to armed conflicts, digital surveillance, corruption and climate justice.

She has expertise across a number of Chambers’ other practice areas, including Professional Discipline, Financial Services, and Sport. She has been instructed in a range of different courts and tribunals including the Supreme Court, Court of Appeal, Administrative Court, Commercial Court, Chancery Division, County Court and Employment Tribunal.

Jana is recognised as a leading junior in The Legal 500 2017-2020 for her expertise in Professional Discipline and Regulatory.

EXPERIENCE

Civil Liberties & Human Rights

Jana specialises in seeking accountability for clients for rights violations. Alongside her work through Chambers, she works for the Open Society Justice Initiative, where she builds strategic litigation cases for redress, accountability and legal reform. She has particular experience building cases arising from armed conflicts, including the ongoing conflicts in Syria and Ukraine. Her cases also relate to climate justice and digital surveillance and involve building coalitions with affected communities.

Before joining Chambers Jana assisted the Bangladesh Legal Aid and Services Trust in Dhaka, Bangladesh, and volunteered with a number of NGOs in the field of legal empowerment, including interning with the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in Jakarta, Indonesia.

Cases
